

➔ Bridal

GOWN | L'élite

Salwa Khoory, owner of L'élite, would never say "no" to a bride. Khoory aims to meet even the toughest request. Her atelier actually got its start restoring and redesigning heirloom wedding dresses, and she continues to offer such services, in addition to selling spectacular gowns that range in price from $1,500 to $15,000. The boutique recently moved into a bigger Newbury Street space, giving the Angel Sanchezes, Monique Lhuilliers and Vera Wangs more room to breathe.

➔ 121-123 Newbury St., Boston » 617-424-1010 » lelite.com

BAND Night Shift

Night Shift can do it all—fast, slow, smooth. The band's seven formally-trained musicians have played together for years, making them a well-oiled machine. They know 350 songs by heart from a range of artists (Rihanna, Stevie Wonder, Dave Matthews Band and the list goes on). And they add more all the time for a roster that's perfectly performed and stylistically diverse.

➔ 800-465-1917 » nightshiftent.com

BRIDESMAID DRESS

Ann Taylor

You've dieted and exercised religiously for the happiest (and skinniest) day of your life, but your ladies-in-waiting can't be expected to do the same. Bridesmaids come in all shapes. Not to mention, most of them have budgets. We love Ann Taylor for their comprehensive sizes (00 to 18), simple styles, reasonable prices (under $200) and convenience. And the tasteful palette means no monstrous, neon frocks to ruin the photos.

➔ Prudential Center, Boston » 617-421-9097 » anntaylor.com

CAKE Party Favors

As delicious as they are creative, the cakes from Party Favors define the idea of "spoiled for choice." Available in 10 flavors, 16 fillings and seven frostings, you can